

Senior Technical Product Manager

(Full Remote - Full Time)

Impressions is the world's first and largest mobile deepfake creation suite. Launched in February of 2020, Impressions has hundreds of thousands of avid users and has received investment to maintain profitability and achieve long-term sustainability.

About the Role

Impressions is looking for a passionate Senior Technical Product Manager to join its fully remote core management team. In this role, you will lead the design, development, and execution of the newest version of this one-of-a-kind mobile deepfake application.

Responsibilities

- Craft a meaningful platform roadmap and promote the vision with stakeholders across the organization.
- Coordinate directly with UX/UI designers, engineering and data science team members to ensure technical feasibility of proposed designs and refine user stories for engineers to execute the build.
- Understanding of modern compute technologies, cloud architectures and machine/deep learning frameworks (e.g. AWS, Google Cloud, Kubernetes, TensorFlow).
- Manage the entire platform life cycle from ideation to planning, execution, and validation.
- Distill noise, clear bottlenecks, and understand interdependencies that define priorities.
- Work with engineering team to ensure technical readiness as part of large-scale platform launches.
- Create KPIs to measure success, updating stakeholders (SQL, Python, and statistical techniques is a huge plus).

Requirements

- Minimum 3 years' experience as a Technical Product Manager, with a consumer technology product
- Experience managing projects involving UI/UX, websites/apps, API integrations, infrastructure and data (ML, AI)
- Background in mobile platform, cloud services and application software
- Experience developing and exercising cross-functional influence, translating between business owners and technical teams
- Experience with business and technical requirements analysis, business process modeling/mapping, methodology development, and data modeling
- Strong technical background with hands-on experience in software development, Android and iOS platforms with a deep understanding of user behavior.
- Successful track record managing projects from feature definition to project deployment through the development lifecycle

As Part Of Our Team, You'll Enjoy

- The hustle of a startup with the impact of a global business
- Tremendous opportunity to solve some of the industry's most exciting problems
- Working with an extraordinary team of smart, creative, fun and highly motivated people
- A competitive salary and meaningful equity
- 100% remote giving you the freedom to work from wherever you please

How to Apply

To apply, click the link below and submit your name, email, resume, and any questions you have about the position and/or the company.

<https://airtable.com/shr3ieYzl8ogT56zE>